Web Developer

ABOUT

After graduating from University, I went to the United States for a couple of months to work. In my time in the US, I worked there as a line cook and photographer. After returning to Turkey, I worked in the fields of Digital Marketing and E-commerce for almost a year. During this time, I became enthusiastic about software development. I enrolled in a course at Neos Software and also did my internship there. While I was taking that course and later, I supported my learning process with Udemy courses and by building my own projects. Nowadays, I am working on Node.js, using Express.js, MongoDB, and Mongoose for back-end development, along with more advanced React for front-end development.
